

2022: THE YEAR RECOUNTED AND CAPTURED IN PHOTOS

A crew member of China's first domestically developed narrow-body aircraft, the C919, waves a national flag as the jetliner landed at around 12pm on December 9 at Hongqiao airport. The aircraft was delivered to China Eastern Airlines, its first operator worldwide, by its developer Commercial Aircraft Corp of China that day.

Cruise tours on the Suzhou Creek open to the public in December after trial operation. The creek, known as the mother river of Shanghai, bears the reminiscence of generations. The route will connect eight piers in the future: Waitanyuan, Sihang Warehouse, Changhua Road, Xikang Road, Mengqing Garden, Zhongshan Park, Changfeng Park and Danba Road.

Shanghai Library East Branch resumes a test run on August 16. The new branch has the largest individual library building in China at 115,000 square meters. There are nearly 6,000 seats inside and it is expected to welcome 4 million visitors per year.

All photos by Dong Jun and Jiang Xiaowei