

A milk tea store on Yuyuan Road is closed after being listed as medium risk on January 15. Three shop assistants in the store were the first Omicron infections found at the community level in Shanghai.

A crocodile spotted near Shanghai's Huangpu River was captured and delivered to an aquatic animal shelter in Chuansha Town of the Pudong New Area on September 25 after a six-day hunt by local police.

A local resident gets a haircut at a temporary roadside stall on the last day of a two-month lockdown on May 31 as others look on.

Shutterbugs take photos of a participant of Shanghai Fashion Week at Xintiandi on September 27. The fashion event returned in September with a physical edition after going digital in June due to the COVID-19 resurgence in the city.

A PCR sample collection kiosk is removed from Shanghai Railway Station on December 8. Shanghai optimized its COVID-19 measures for domestic travelers and close contacts beginning that day.

A blind runner (center) gets ready for 2022 Shanghai Marathon on November 27. The annual event made a return with about 18,000 runners after being canceled last year due to the COVID-19 pandemic.