Hongqiao airport to resume international flight services

Zhu Yuting

STARTING from Sunday, Shanghai Hongqiao International Airport will resume international airline services, the Shanghai airport operator announced on Tuesday.

Meanwhile, flight services to Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan will also be resumed.

International flight services were suspended at the airport from March 25, 2020, due to the COVID-19 control policies. Since then, all international flights and those to Hong Kong, Macau and Taiwan were moved to Pudong International Airport.

As China downgraded COVID-19 management, international travel curbs were lifted on January 8. Pudong airport became busier with more international flights.

Starting from Sunday, 11 airlines — Shanghai Airlines, Air China, Japan Airlines, All Nippon Airways, Korean Air, Asiana Airlines, Cathay Pacific, Hong Kong Airlines, Air Macau, China Airlines and EVA Air — will provide international flight services at Hongqiao's Terminal 1.

City leads in most beautiful public venues

FOUR Shanghai venues have stood out among the top 20 most beautiful public cultural venues in China.

Twenty public cultural venues including libraries, museums and theaters across the country were awarded the most beautiful at a ceremony held at the Pudong Culture & Arts Center last Thursday.

Shanghai was the biggest winner scooping four places.

They are Pudong Library, "30° Space" — an exhibition and pop-up area in the Normandie Apartments, Dongyuan — a mini garden tucked away in skyscrapers of Lujiazui, and Huayuan Linjuhui (below) — a community "living room" built in the style of a log cabin near a big lawn.

The Most Beautiful Public Cultural Venue Competition was initiated by the Pudong government and Shanghai Culture and Tourism Administration in 2018, and over the years it gradually expanded to the Yangtze River Delta Region, and today's 112 cities across the country.
