

SHANGHAI TOWER

At a height of 632 meters, Shanghai Tower is the tallest building in China. The skyscraper has one of the world's fastest vertical transport systems and an observation deck on the uppermost floors for visitors to have a bird's-eye view of the city. It also has different zones used for retail, offices, hotel accommodation, art exhibitions and recreation areas.

The tower reflects the city's commitment to environmental friendliness as green architectural elements and technologies were incorporated into its design. Many films, TV series and commercials have been shot there, such as "Fox Hunt," "The Ideal City" and "Love is Sweet."

Shanghai's film locations ready for their close-up

Xu Wei

Welcome to our "Lights, Camera" series, in which we continue to explore the rich cinematic heritage and cultural resources of Shanghai, a city with so many stories to tell.

The first episode of Shanghai's most popular locations for shooting featured five eye-catching sites — the Shanghai Port International Cruise Terminal, Fengjing Ancient Town, the Nine Trees Future Art Center, M50 Creative Park, and M+ Blackstone Music Plus.

Today, we will guide you to the remaining five of the 2023 Shanghai's Top 10 Film and TV Locations. You can visit these amazing locations to take photos and learn more about the city's distinctive charm.

HUANGPU RIVER TOUR SIGHTSEEING CRUISE

The Huangpu River is known as the "mother river" of Shanghai. The iconic Huangpu River cruise tour is a world-class attraction and a tourism brand of the city. During the 45-kilometer tour, passengers can appreciate the magnificent night views of both sides of the river.

They are usually amazed at the spectacular views of Lujiazui, the Bund, Nanpu and Yangpu bridges, and the former 2010 Shanghai World Expo site. Films, TV series and variety shows that shot scenes from the cruise include "If Time Flows Back," "Under the Sun," "Go Fighting!" and "Up Idol."
